

Alex Shapiro

composer and advocate

2024 Biography and C.V.

BIOGRAPHY

Alex Shapiro (b. New York City, 1962) aligns note after note with the hope that at least a few of them will actually sound good next to each other. Her persistence at this activity, as well as non-fiction writing, public speaking, arts advocacy volunteerism, wildlife photography, and the shameless instigation of insufferable puns on Facebook, has led to a happy life.

Drawing from a broad musical palette that giddily ignores genre, Alex's acoustic and electroacoustic works for small chamber groups and ridiculously large ensembles are performed and broadcast daily, and can be found on over thirty commercial releases from record labels around the world. Shapiro is known for her innovative uses of technology in concert performance, conjuring a seamless melding of live and recorded sounds in pieces that often encourage striking visual and physical elements. True to the name of her publishing company Activist Music LLC, on occasion Alex chooses to use her works as vessels for impactful messages about environmental and social issues.

Devoted not only to placing little dots on many pages, but to improving the livelihoods of her peers, Ms. Shapiro has held the sole Symphonic & Concert writer seat on the Board of Directors of ASCAP since 2014. She also serves on the boards of The Aaron Copland Fund for Music, and The ASCAP Foundation, of which she is an Officer. In 2022 Alex was elected to the Board of Directors of the Music Publishers Association of the United States as the MPA's first independent member whose company she represents, Activist Music LLC, publishes solely her own catalog. Alex is a former board member of U.S. music organizations including The American Music Center, the American Composers Forum Los Angeles Chapter (of which she was President), The MacDowell Colony, and The Society of Composers & Lyricists (of which she was Vice president). From 2016 to 2019 Shapiro traveled to Japan, Europe, Mexico, and Africa to speak on behalf of ASCAP as its elected representative on the Executive Committee of The International Council of Music Authors (CIAM)— the writers' council of CISAC, a global network of collective rights management societies representing over 4 million creators in 121 countries. Alex is the creator of Programming Resources, a widely shared webpage of aggregated links that assists conductors in discovering composers from underrepresented backgrounds.

Educated at The Juilliard School and Manhattan School of Music as a student of Ursula Mamlok and John Corigliano, Shapiro moved from Manhattan to Los Angeles in 1983, beginning her career composing for commercial media before switching her focus to the concert music world in the late 90s. In 2007 Alex traded the traffic and wildfires of Malibu for the puddle jumpers and wildlife of Washington State's remote, bridge-less San Juan Island.

From her home and studio on the water's edge, when Alex isn't giving guest lectures and webinars on electroacoustic music, copyright, diversity and inclusion, and future technology, or leading webhearsals of her music with ensembles around the world, she procrastinates on her next piece by pointing her camera at anything with paws, claws, hooves, wings, tentacles or fins. The resulting, award-winning photos sometimes find their way into Shapiro's multimedia electroacoustic works as well as her website, where just as on her blog, and her Facebook page, Alex's music and images can be experienced separately, and together.

A NOTE ABOUT THE IMPACT OF THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

In March 2020 as the world jolted to a sudden stop, despite the postponement of premieres for Alex's current and upcoming works, her commissions (along with their looming deadlines) remained in place. Ms. Shapiro completed multiple electroacoustic pieces for large ensembles: ASCENT, PASSAGES, KITCHEN SYNC, COUNT TO TEN, BREATHE, and her most significant work to date, SUSPENDED, her second symphony for winds and percussion which premiered in July 2021 at Devos Performance Hall in Grand Rapids, MI with the National Intercollegiate Band, conducted by Dr. Cynthia Johnston Turner. Alex also produced a CD titled ARCANA featuring 80 minutes of her complete solo piano works, recorded by Adam Marks and released in August 2020 on Innova Recordings. But in addition to her writing and producing schedule, Alex—with her reputation for connecting with musicians online since the late 90s—became deeply involved in seeking solutions to new and immediate problems in the field.

As education transitioned to digital formats, Alex's longtime work with technology led the University of Washington's music department to contact her in mid-March 2020 for ideas about continuing their semester solely online. In response, Alex created a web-based curriculum, Putting the E- in E-ensemble for the school's wind band and orchestra members that had the students playing and recording original motives on their instruments, and collaborating with each other as they composed a "sonic quilt" from their own music. Alex has continued to oversee that curriculum with over 40 other universities and high schools. More information can be found in an article UW published about the project in May 2020.

In April 2020 Alex was invited to be the sole composer member on the ad hoc CBDNA COVID-19 Response Committee, and with its 11 conductor members she co-authored a comprehensive report released just a month later, filled with resources and detailed suggestions for keeping university ensemble programs afloat and thriving.

Among the many abrupt changes faced by music performance and education programs are the challenges associated with unpredictable ensemble personnel, as some schools are online-only and others are a blend of in-person and remote. Seeking to encourage composers to create flexible repertoire to address this need, Alex co-founded the Creative Repertoire Initiative with 11 colleagues in the wind band world, each of whom composed new works designed for adaptable instrumentation, and posted templates of their processes on the CRI website to assist their peers. The CRI Facebook Group now has over 5600 composer and conductor members, and the adaptable repertoire is flourishing.

Concurrent with all the above, as 2020 exploded with not just the disease of coronavirus, but that of systemic racism, Alex penned a lengthy chapter for a book on diversity, equity and inclusion in the wind band world titled, The Horizon Leans Forward..., released in December 2020 by GIA Publications.

The following pages contain a thorough listing of activities that have kept Alex busy over the years. Some sections are marked to reflect the stark delineation between pre-pandemic and post-pandemic life. To wit, Ms. Shapiro did more residencies and guest lectures in the eight months between March and November 2020, than she had in the past twenty years. In fact, 25% more of them. Here's to the internet, to connectivity, and to making music and caring for others, regardless of challenging conditions.

Education

Manhattan School of Music (1980-1983); composition student of Ursula Mamlok and John Corigliano.
The Juilliard School, Pre-College Division (1979-1980); composition student of Craig Shuler and Bruce Adolphe.
Aspen Music School (summers, 1978, 1979); composition student of Michael Czajkowski and George Tsontakis.
Mannes College of Music (summer, 1977); composition student of Leo Edwards.
Piano Studies (1971-1980); student of Marshall Kreisler.
The Ethical Culture Fieldston School (1974-1980); Ms. Shapiro is proud of her sole diploma, from high school.
